When it comes to collecting union dues for public sector unions like those representing government employees or teachers, who should be responsible for collecting these dues - the unions themselves or the government?

December 2013 - 66% say workers should have the right not to have union dues spent on political activities which they disagree with.

Is the current practice of allowing public sector unions to use state resources to collect dues from its members a legitimate use of taxpayer funds?

ONLY UNION HOUSEHOLDS
February 2014 Survey

80% think government should not collect PAC Money.

State legislators in Harrisburg are considering a law that would prohibit or ban the use of taxpayer resources for collection of public sector union dues, like those representing government employees or teachers, and instead require unions to collect these funds directly from workers.

Generally speaking, do you support or oppose this proposed new law?
